Biography

David Thomas Hess began his education with San Antonio College as a dual credit student at the age of 16 taking the Introduction to Web Programming course. He was then able to discover the digital design department, which led him to pursue a Web Design degree. He decided to expand his knowledge by not only taking courses with the web design department, but also taking courses within the IT department so he could learn how to program webpages.

David was chosen as an intern for Webhead TM for two consecutive semesters. After much hard work, he has now been able to earn an Associate of Applied Science in Web Design.

During his time at San Antonio College, David met his fiance in an art class and they were both involved with volunteering at Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation.

They will be getting married in August 2013. After graduation from San Antonio College, he will pursue a Bachelor's degree from A&M San Antonio.
