College Preparatory Requirements

- College preparatory requirements may be satisfied through a variety of options. The options may depend on the program selected. These may include accelerated offerings such as flex term classes (8-week), 4-week and 12-week classes. Additional refresher offerings may include short-term courses, integration of skill development into entry level certificate courses, or a contextualized course that addresses multiple skill areas. The goal is to help students improve their readiness for college and complete college preparatory requirements as quickly and successfully as possible.

- Beginning with the Fall 2012 first time in college cohort, students scoring below identified target thresholds will be advised to strongly consider pathways/options that lead to certificates and technical degrees in high demand clusters. Students will have the option to enroll in intensive basic skills study to reach the required college-readiness for the program of choice as quickly as possible.

- Beginning Fall 2012, students with college preparatory requirements will be in continuous, mandatory college preparatory enrollment each term until all requirements are completed. The enrollment may be in a regular course or one of the other available options. The college will assist the student in getting into the program of choice as quickly as possible.
