Flu Season is here

Seasonal influenza activity in the United States remains low, but the number of influenza virus detections reported by clinical and public health laboratories and the percent of patient visits for influenza-like illness has increased in recent weeks. The best way to reduce your risk from seasonal flu and its potentially serious complications is to get vaccinated every year. Everyone 6 months and older should get a flu vaccine every season with rare exceptions. Vaccination is particularly important for people who are at higher risk of serious complications from influenza. Source:

COVID-19 Testing Site

Effective Monday, January 3, 2022 all employees and vendors' employees who are scheduled to work regularly on site will be required to be screened for COVID-19 on a weekly basis, but screenings will be optional for students. Screenings (via PCR Test) will be available several days each week at each of our colleges and DSO locations. Go to alamo.edu/COVID-screening to pre-register.

Preventive Steps

CDC recommends all eligible people vaccinate as the first and most important step in protecting against viruses. Vaccines help to reduce the burden of illnesses, hospitalizations and deaths on the health care system each year. Vaccination of people at higher risk of developing serious complications is especially important in people with certain chronic health conditions like asthma, diabetes or heart and lung disease.

January's focus is Cervical Health Awareness Month

The U.S. Congress designated January as Cervical Health Awareness Month. More than 13,000 women in the United States are diagnosed with cervical cancer each year, a fact made all the more frustrating because the disease is virtually always preventable with vaccination and appropriate screening (Pap and HPV tests). January is also National Blood Donor Month. There will be a Blood Drive on February 9, 2022. <https://donor.southtexasblood.org/donor/schedules/geo>
